sirow master's Thesis Award 2008/2009

Projects concerning women in the Southwest and the US-Mexico Border Region

The Southwest Institute for Research on Women (SIROW) offers an annual prize of $250 to University of Arizona students in any discipline who complete a master level thesis or an equivalent master's project on a topic related to women in the Southwest or the US-Mexico border region. Only projects completed within the current academic year (2008-2009) will be considered for this award.

Candidates should submit an abstract and one chapter of their thesis that in their judgment best represents the contribution and scholarship of their project. In the case of non-thesis projects (e.g., an article, book chapter, film project, etc.), please contact Corey Knox at SIROW (cknox@email.arizona.edu) to discuss alternate submission materials.

Also include, on a separate page, 1) the name of your advisor or thesis chairperson 2) a mailing address, phone number and email address where you can be contacted during the summer.

Deadline for submissions: May 30, 2009 @5PM

Winner will be notified by June 30, 2009
